

Camp John Marc: Risk Management

Every Camp John Marc staff member and activity leader commits to following a set of principles.

- We are aware of how many campers will be coming to our activity area today and when.
- We will conduct roll call by calling outloud each camper's name at the start of each activity period today.
- We are familiar with the medical needs of each camper at our activity area today and will run our activity with these needs in mind.
- The equipment used in our activity area today will be the appropriate size for the participants and has been checked to be in good condition. If the equipment is not in good condition, it will be repaired or retired.
- We have surveyed our activity area and we are comfortable that the area is suitable for the activity.
- We have a walkie talkie that is working (turned on, volume up, "radio checked").
- We know the location of the first aid kit at our activity area.
- We know our responsibility and areas to cover for the Lost Camper Plan.
- We know our responsibility for helicopter transport.
- We know our responsibility for an ambulance transport.
- We know the procedures for lightning and severe weather. We are prepared to implement our Rainy Day Plan.
- We will run our activity today using the policies we have been trained on for managing risks, correct procedures, and logical thinking.
- We understand the importance of good judgment in running our activity today.
- We have completed a lesson plan for our activity area today and we will follow this plan.
- We are aware of the desired outcomes for our activity area and will run our area with those in mind.
- We have reviewed the more detailed Risk Management and safety materials posted in our area.
